All Things Considered

The Culimination is the last of a three year chronicle of Easter Nazarene College. The All Things Considered Trilogy would give a vast and wide documentation of the school while each separte book focuss on a different part of life on campus. The frist book the Renaissance, discussed the new and changing areas of the school: incoming students teachers as well as new clubs and activities. The second book, The preservation, turned attention toward the aspects of the school that had lasted the test of time: veteran teachers, school land marks, and age old traditions.

Finally, the trilogy concludes with the Culmination, which was originally suppose to highlight things on campus that come to an end. However, Eastern Nazerene College is founded on the faith of a God who is anything but ending. Isaiah 43:18-19 state's "Forget the former things; do not dwell on the past. See I am doing a new thing! Now it springs up; do you not perceieve it?" The purpose of the culmination is to capture the constant progression of the Christian experience at Eastern Nazarene College. Progression encompasses change with in the school and in the lives of the faculity, staff, students and surrounding community of Eastern Nazerene College, uniting all aspects of the campus, old, new, and renewed.

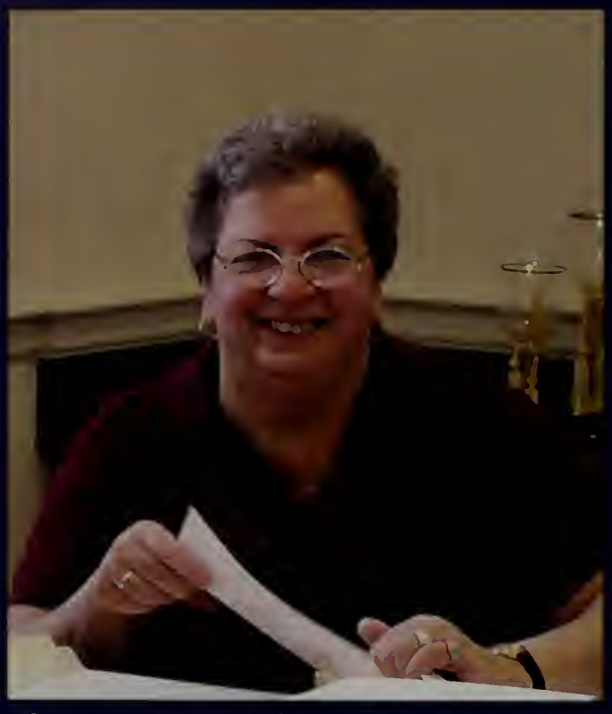
Norma Bell
Dedication



Thoughts on Norma Bell

Some people search for sunshine to brighten their cloudy days. Others carry sunshine with them wherever they go-making everyone's day brighter. Norma Bell is definitely one of those. If she is having a bad day, you will never know it. She is always pleasant-always optimistic. She makes a visit to her office a pleasant one. Her smile is like a check in the mail. She is one of ENC's best kept secrets.

When she arrives at work in the mornings, she has a greeting for her fellow workers: "Another day in Paradise." And she means it. She not only genuinely cares about people but she shows it in special ways-like home-baked goodies for the office or pleasant messages left on your phone answering machine. Her sense of humor is unsurpassed. Laughing for her is like frosting on a cake-smooth and easy to take.

And she has been doing this at Eastern Nazarene College for nearly 20 years. Twenty years! Thats five generations of college students. Her area of responsibility is student financial aid. But her real business is encouraging the people who come her way. Married to the same man for 35 years, Norma has two daughters and one grandson. You might say that "she wrote the book" on family values.

When legacies are mentioned some day, people will say that Norma Bell has left the finest legacy anyone could receive-an inheritance of friendship, love, reality, kindness, and joy.

What do you say about a woman who owns a piece of your heart? You say, "Norma Bell".

Written by Dr. Tom Barnard
A Vice President at ENC for 19 years

Norma Bell is a very compassionate person who has done so much for Eastern Nazarene College. She has a great sense of humor and offers great advice. Day to day conversations with Norma are among my favorite memories of my time spent at ENC."

The Collective Diverse Seniors

Dear Senior Class,

This year has been quite an adventure. Some events that stick out in my mind are selling more than 150 whoopee pies at the Street Fair, the Birdie Tourney, class chapels, the Jr./Sr. Banquet, and the senior retreat, just to name a few.

Both semesters have gone by so quickly and while the excitement of graduation continually pops up in my thoughts, I am sure that as I receive my diploma I will be thinking, "So...that's it? It's time to start my life now?" It's hard to believe that our time here has already come to an end, but you've heard it said many times before; it really is just the beginning. We have had the advantage these last four years to experience a small community that has helped shape us into becoming who we really are and compels us to strive toward great things. As we move on through our lives, never forget the relationships built here, the lives that you have touched and of course, the late night food runs. It has been a pleasure to serve you as President and I hope to hear all about your successes in the future. Good luck and in the words of Edwin McCain - just do your thing.

EASTERN NAZARENE COLLEGE

The Classical Difference

Faculty and Staff

The faculty and staff of Eastern Nazarene College make the difference. Their classical style forms the tradition and authority this school requires. What they do for the students is invaluable. Whether through their lectures, sermons, financial accounting, or cleaning, they constantly serve the students with wonderful spirit. The students are blessed to have such a diverse selection of faculty and staff to help guide them through this monumental part of their lives. The difference they make on those around them is sometimes unnoticed, yet it is never unseen by God. What makes the difference is their willingness to cater to the specific needs of the student body. Their sacrifice is wholly appreciated. The faculty and staff are the classical difference in the ENC community.

The Soul Impact

Underclass

The underclassmen of Eastern Nazarene College have made a strong impact on this campus. Each individual student affects another whether he or she knows it or not. There is a great deal of servanthood among the student body, which is seen in everyday activities. These include sitting at with someone who was sitting alone, holding a door for someone whose arms were full, cheering the Crusaders on, the junior class raising money for the Junior Senior, and the community service in which each individual class participates.

The underclassmen as a group of individuals collaboratively provide the school with new ideas, different cultures, a vast array of personalities, and various different denominations. However, as a whole, they are a group of students who have one faith. How students carry themselves influences those around them, which ultimately changes the atmosphere of the campus from year to year. This is a campus of continuous transitions, which, in turn, makes it a campus that is continually renewed.

The Focused Performance

Sports

The Eastern Nazarene College Crusaders have a competitive NCAA Division III athletics program in which the performance of each player shines during practices, games, and meets. These ten teams come together each season to play there hardest through much focused effort. Each player contributes to the whole team to go above and beyond. The outcome of the game displays the spirit of the team as well as the fans. The Crusader teams work hard to earn the respect of their fellow students and alumni. This, in turn supports the focused performance of each player.

The soccer team this season was very unique. Although more than half the team was made up of first-year players, every young lady on the team contributed to all the practices and games. The various talents and personalities created a tight team bond on and off the field. As the season progressed, the team was able to play hard for a full 90 minutes in the midst of highs and lows against competitive opponents. The heart for teamwork and for the love of the game was illustrated as several players were injured one game and came back fighting in the next. Through plasterd bible verses an encouraging quotes in the locker room, Coach A' reminded the team daily that we are ultimately playing for the Lord. Unfailing leadership came from the assistant coaches and the co-captain Maria Pousson as well. Of course, ENC women's soccer would not be what it is without the faithful fans. (ENC is in first place for having the most fans at home games in the Commonwealth Coast Conference.) We love you all (and your food!) This is why in the huddle before every game we are unashamed to acknowledge who we represent, "Hands in...One, Two, Three...ENC!"

ENC'S RISING STAR

Chelsea Clark

This year was a year to learn and grow as not just players or as a team but as individuals. I feel like we accomplished all three and cann't wait til next season. Freshman class you rock!

Brittany Boswell

The 2005 soccer season was amazing in every sense of the word! The entire womens team developed into one giant group of best friends. Regardless of our record we all knew how to have fun and that the season started tomorrow. In this team any bystander, dedicated fan, or opposing team could see dedication, commitment, loyalty, love, and a heart to serve. We all realize Boston Market is out of the question for the future, but the divine times we had we stay with us forever!

Melaine Genovese warms up before the game.

MEN'S SOCCER

Andrew Krause, Jesse Mix, and Ezekiel Gillie anxiously await the start of the game.

This years men's soccer season was a great season, and a success. The wins and loses may not say so, but the season was a huge success. Last year having barely enough to field a team we came back this year with a big freshman class that gave us plenty of extra players. The freshmen class came in ready to play and ready to work hard. This class of players came with great skill that added to the team. We had a great sense of comradery, even with all of the freshman we had on the team. Coach Newell did a great job in recruiting all of the freshman. Even though five returners are the back bone of the team the freshman that were added this season show promise and a very bright future.

Izirlei Guimaraes dashes to the ball to make a great steal.

ENC'S RISING STARS

Joe Meserve

"It was great to be a part of a team this year that was able to grow so much as individuals and as a team. I'm really looking forward to next year."

Josh Corbin

"Seeing the team's improvement from last year to this year was very encouraging. I hope that my play will help the team to continue in that direction."

WOMEN'S VOLLEYBALL

One might say this volleyball season was a kind of fresh start. The team welcomed eight freshman and a new head coach, Mike Johnston, with assistant coach Alexis Miranda. However, the three returners – co-captains Courtney Kosmerl and Amber Crow – along with senior Heather Warmuth were not willing to let the young team develop by itself. Their example of leadership and motivation was an important presence all through the season. For such a young team they made their mark, making it to playoffs and finishing with a 5-4 conference record. Although the team's outstanding seniors will be gone, with Amber Crow, our returning sophomore, and some new freshman talent, ENC volleyball is ready to step up its game.

ENC'S RISING STARS

Rebekah Sorensen

"This past season has been an interesting learning experience for me. Coming into a new team which consisted of eight freshman, three returners, and a first-year coach was one of the many challenges that the team faced. Despite all of this, our team still made it to the playoffs and we established ourselves as competitors amongst the top teams in the conference. I am anxious and excited to see the developement of this young team in the years to come."

Heather Warmuth

"I had so much fun this year. I loved playing with every one of the girls and learning under Coach was a privilege. Thinking about those long rides back in the van always makes me smile. Keep laughing girls!"

WOMEN'S CROSS COUNTRY

Amanda Fish, Kristal Lee, Maureen O'Brien, Jessica Matt, Alicia Cassettari, Ashley Jardim, Tori Hamilton, Kelly Moser, Erin Stone, Melissa Douglas. Missing: Kate McNally

The 2005 women's cross country season was another season of progress and potential for the lady Crusaders. The team once again drew big numbers, with the 11 ladies representing the largest women's team the cross country program has ever had. At full strength, the women's team boasted 4 runners at or under the 23 minute mark for 5k. Promising freshmen Jessica Matt and Melissa Douglas joined veteran leaders Kate McNally and Amanda Fish to form a strong lead group, and the supporting group showed the potential and improvement to keep hopes high. The women started the year strong, finishing 2nd out of 6 teams at the opening meet at Mass Maritime, and hopes were high for the rest of the season. Unfortunately, as the season progressed, the usual challenges of injuries and illnesses mounted, resulting in the loss of several strong runners. Despite never running at full strength during the second half of the season, the women still acquitted themselves well in competition. The team's most impressive finish of the year came in monsoon-like conditions at the Regis College invitational. Running shorthanded in heavy rain on a flooded, muddy course, the ladies dug deep and managed to finish in 4th place out of 12 teams. With only one senior on the team, the women are looking forward to getting back to full strength next year and seeing where their talent and hard work can take them.

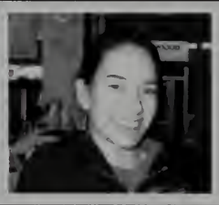
Jessica Matt

This year's cross country season has been both challenging and rewarding. From taking second place in our first meet to getting through our many injuries, our team has pulled together and supported each other through it all. These girls have taught me to how to stay positive and laugh my fears away. And somehow through tie-dying t-shirts, crazy van rides and our original starting line cheer, we have come together as more than just team mates but as good friends.



Kate McNally

First and foremost I must thank God for being with me daily. This year I found a deeper dedication to my sport and with the loving support of my teammates and coach I pushed myself harder than I ever have before. Through out the season I not only felt good, but I was having the time of my life!

MEN'S CROSS COUNTRY

The men's cross country team entered the 2005 season hoping to build on their 4th place conference finish from the 2004 season. With last year's top 5 returning and a good group of first year runners, the 2005 season promised to be another year of improvement for the Crusaders. Underclass returners Matt Coder, Jay Wilson, and Jeff Hamilton joined seniors Chad Bantjes and Matt Berrian to provide the source of experience for the team. Joining them were standout first year runners Troy White and Chris Reilly, and a number of other rookies that provided the team with excellent depth. With the newcomers added into the mix, this year's version of the team was once again an improvement on the season before. The men spent the season focused on the conference championship meet, with the goal of finishing 3rd in the CCC. Running in a late October snow, the men put forth their best effort but ended up just a little short with their second consecutive 4th place finish. Despite the conditions, the men still put up some of their best times of the season, and the 4th place finish cemented their position in the top half of the conference. The team's most impressive race came in the last meet of the year at the ECAC championships. Racing in good running conditions for the first time in over a month, all 6 men competing on the day set personal best times over the 5 mile course. The men's team will graduate several seniors this year, but a strong core will remain to continue ENC's challenge in the CCC.

- Coach Ed Gardner

ENC'S RISING STARS

Chris Reilly

"I loved the intensity of Cross Country and the sound of the gun. After the shot all these runners would instantly take off into the woods, rain, or snow. Whatever the elements were, we would run in it."

Chad Bantjes

"After eight years of running cross country I'm glad it's finally over. Don't get me wrong, I like running sometimes, but everyday was a little much. Maybe I'll run another marathon before I die, well..... probably not! It was fun while it lasted."

Chris Reilly distances himself from his opponent despite the weather.

Jay Wilson and Troy White stick together.

Keeping with the crowd, Matt Berrian and Chad Bantjes conserve their energy for a later dash to the finish.

WOMEN'S TENNIS

Brooke Bartlett concentrates in a desperate attempt to hit the ball.

With graduation, transfers, and busy schedules, the tennis team was down to only five members during preseason, but two freshmen and three sophomores stepped up to the plate to complete this year's squad. It was a rebuilding year filled with much learning, and many challenges, but the team meshed well and enjoyed the season. They are looking forward to building a more experienced team in the upcoming year.

"A lot happened this year for us on the tennis team. A lot of people were shocked and a little mad when they came to play us and then later found out we had actually beaten them. One kid actually cried. (Right) Coach Hardee has been in charge of the women's basketball team for five years at ENC. He strives to make his team the hardest working team in the conference and his influence has shown, as the team has improved dramatically in his time here. His goal is for his team to "make the most of the talent [they] have been given, both as individuals and collectively." In addition to improving their athletic skills, Coach Hardee wants his players to be the best Christians they can, both on the court and off. He encourages his players to become involved in their community. He hopes to have his team answer the question: "How do we live our lives for Christ in everything that we do?"

MEN'S BASEBALL

The ENC Baseball team achieved its third consecutive 20-win season and went deep into the Commonwealth Coast Conference Baseball tournament, bowing out in the second of two semi-final games. ENC finished in 3rd place among 11 conference schools with a regular season record of 13-7 and then after dropping their opening round game, won 3 straight in the playoffs including a 6-1 victory over eventual champions, Endicott College.

It was a tough start for the Crusaders and with faith the team began looking for a spark and got one when Junior Brad Mountain took the mound against Mass. Maritime Academy. Mountain faced the minimum batters and recorded a no-hitter (the first in school history) with 19 strikeouts. Mountain would also become the career leader in wins with a 21-5 record by seasons end.

After winning 2 straight over conference rivals, Gordon and Nichols, ENC headed to the playoffs for the third straight year, sending Nichols and Colby-Sawyer packing in the elimination round of the tournament. The season produced several record-breaking performances including 6 players being named to the all-conference team. Matt Watson headed the list and eclipsed two Crusader greats as he broke ENC's career hits record with 150 (Scott Madden, 135) and RBI mark with 101 (Jeremy Anderson, 93). Graham Crain was named ENC Athlete of the Year and along with A.J. Turner were the top two vote getters among CCC infielders. Two freshmen capped the list including Smith, who tallied 6 victories and Catcher Craig Turner, who hit 5 homers and led the conference with 39 RBI.

With an overall record of 20-19 and wins over Endicott, Salve, and Suffolk, the Crusaders would await a possible at-large berth in the ECAC baseball Championships. The Crusaders hosted the tournament in 2004 after posting a 28-win season.

The Core Vision

Clubs & Organizations

The clubs and organizations of this community have a core vision. Each group meets in order to reach out to others, to inspire others, or to praise the Lord. These groups provide a way for many different students to come together as a whole to share their similar interests. They represent the core of their mission to spread their vision to ENC community.

Each year we are proud to introduce new clubs and organizations. This year we have a couple new groups, including Women of Grace Strings Ensemble, Business Society and Symphonic Winds. The clubs and organizations provide the campus with a core vision among all who participate. These are groups where people can express themselves individually while keeping a tradition alive.

The Excutive SGA is a group of elected students who organize and run all the student activities, events and ministries on campus. The Executive SGA meet weekly and each of them have daily office hours. Although they work together as a group, each one of them have very unique and separate tasks to carry out. The Executive members work closely with each class council as well as with each club and organization that is funded by the SGA. This group of individuals are the determining factor in shaping the student body.

COMMUTER COUNCIL

You don't have to live on campus to be a part of the ENC community. The Commuter Council seeks to build community among ENC's commuters, mostly through social events. This past year, the council held a Valentines Day party as well as an end-of-the-year cook out, which attracted a good crowd. "Participation has been much better this year. Good initiative was taken to have these events and organization was good as well," says Amy Hwang, advisor to the Commuter Council. HISTORY CLUB

The History Club provides a place for history majors to have a great time, interact with professors, and to hear lectures, take trips and engage in other such opportunities. The History Club had a full year this past year with a Thanksgiving and Christmas reception, freshmen welcome reception, various game nights and activities with other departments and their annual senior banquet. They also rewrote their constitution, sponsored a total of six lectures and took a field trip to Adam's National Park in the fall. History Club president, Heather Warmuth, is hopeful that the club will take more advantage of opportunities in Boston and to interact with other departments on campus. She comments, "The History Club is a very tight-knit group of people and I think we know how to strike a balance between fun and academics. I hope that this continues."

BIOLOGY CLUB

Beta Phi Mu, beginning this year, encompasses biology and chemestry majors, bringing to them a sense of community through social events, including game nights, softball games against the History Club, and parties. This past year, the Bio Club restructured their constitution and also began a series of career seminars that help to inform under and upper classmen of the various career paths available in biology and/or chemistry and to keep them aware of what is expected of them in their major. Also, this year, the Biology Club teamed up with Students for Social Justice and cleaned up Wessagusett Park in Weymouth, a project that lasted a few hours and accumulated truckloads of everything from broken bottles and candy wrappers to discarded tiers and engines. The year ended with their successful annual senior banquet.

STUDENT ASSOCIATION OF SOCIAL WORKERS

The Student Association of Social Workers (SASW) is an organization committed to serving the community and increasing awareness of social work as a profession, says senior and president of SASW, Ryan Ardrey. This year, SASW sponsored a campus-wide gift drive to provide children of low-income families in the Germantown area with Christmas gifts. They defined social work as "a profession of care" on campus durring Social Work Awareness Month this passed March. They also raised money to put together Easter baskets for children involved with Friends of the Homeless. Each year, SASW receives thankful letters from the community they serve, demonstrating that they are the embodiment of "a profession of care."

PHYSICS AND ENGINEERING CLUB

PEC seeks to bring the excitement of physics and engineering to ENC through inviting student to participate in activities that may help them enjoy their physics more. "PEC is about shedding the stereo type of geekiness and showing the campus that even though we are smart, we can have fun too," says PEC president, Jonathan Hall (06). The group sold balso wood airplanes, had a homemade ring game (similar to opperation) and converted the plasma screens into a video game station. Their second annual Egg Drop competition proved to be another success and a tradition that will continue. PEC has grown in size this year and shown great leadership potential. Jonathan is confident that PEC will further enrich this campus with events, activities and lectures in the future.

This year marked the first in the life of ENC's Business Society. Created for the purpose of establishing networks between students and neighborhood businesses, the Business Society made some significant accomplishments its first year. Fall semester, they held a major event on campus with Massachusetts State Treasurer Tom Cahill as their guest speaker. They also held a resume workshop and participated in Jr. Achievement, a program in which ENC students enter neighborhood elementary schools to teach the kids how important they are to their city and also teach them a little bit about business. Business Society president Ana Pimentel attests, "The Business Society has helped me personally create a larger network," and future plans for the group include the hope of it becoming an honors society, offering scholarships for business majors and connecting with recent graduates.

Named after the apostle Paul's first missionary companion, known as "the encourager," Barnabas gathers weekly in the IRC to create inspiring notes and cards for ENC's faculty and staff members. These cards have brought tears,

ENC'S WARRIORS

Beginning this year, ENC's Prayer Warriors and Verse of the Week have pulled together to formulate ENC's Warriors. The Warriors meet weekly in Angell Chapel to lift up the needs of the student body in prayer and to spread encouragement to the campus with a new verse each week. This verse, once chosen, is printed and posted around campus. The Warriors say that seeing the verse reminds fellow students that they don't have to feel alone, that there is a God who cares and people who care.

laughter and, most of all, encouragement to those who receive them. This is a treasured ministry on campus. Recipients of cards have often commented that everything from the timing of the card to its seemingly customed design was perfect. Leader Jen Smith says, "God has definitely blessed this ministry as well as used it to bless others." Barnabus was a valuable ascet to Encouragment Week this past year and has also made a valient attempt to reach out to more of the student body and hopes to continue doing so.

OASIS

We all need a cup of cold water in His name, and that includes those who often carry the water jugs. Oasis is a gathering of all of the ministry leaders on campus that takes place one Saturday morning a month. During this time, the leaders share concerns, pray for one another, and discuss and strategize future ministry plans. "It's a good time to connect with other leaders and it also reminded me that I wasn't alone in a lot of the concerns I had," says Liz Kemmerer (07), STAND Leader. Under the leadership of this year's Student Ministries Director, Colin Chapman (06), Oasis's goal for this year was to maintain an inner/outer focus; each ministry would distinguish ways to reach out to the campus (inner) as well as to the community (outer). Oasis looks forward to continuing to deepen the communication of ENC's ministry leaders in the days ahead.

STUDENTS FOR SOCIAL JUSTICE

In its first full year up and running, Students for Social Justice is about education, empowerment and, especially, service. Working closely with the Office of Spiritual Development, social justice has become the "hot word" on campus. This year, SSJ sponsored a domestic violence awarneness program on campus, a Wal-Mart awareness program, a push for a recycling program on campus and and the Invisible Children program. They also assisted in the activities of several campus ministries and organizations Students have been challenged to think seriously about social justice and how they can act on it, as have administrators, in relation to the students at ENC. SSJ co-leader, Jonathan Youngman (07), states, "Social justice is not something that belongs within the confines of a special interest group. It needs to be a personal lifestyle and community focus. My hope is that SSJ will move ENC in this direction."

Jump Drama Ministry is a group of students that ministers to the campus and neighboring community through the medium of drama and dramatic readings. Primarily, they perform for youth groups and chapel services on campus. This year, Jump played a major role in the Domestic Violence chapel put on by Students for Social Justice in October. They also performed for Ash Wednesday chapel in April. "The large number of freshmen who joined this year brought lots of energy to the group," says co-leader Erin Lafex (06). Under the leadership of Preston Graveline (09) and Angela Richardson (08) next year, one of Its primary goals was to step it up on outreach through more traveling performances. "Traveling, we found, really helps us gel as a group and, therefore, excel as a ministry," Erin says. Exploding with energy, talent and sincere dedication to ministry, Jump is enjoyed by both the campus and community.

STAND

STAND (Students Tackling AIDS kNeeling Down) is a ministry devoted to the local and global fight against the HIV/AIDS pandemic through raising awareness, fundraising to support research and humanitarian projects pertaining to AIDS and hands-on service. Affiliated with World Vision's Acting on AIDS, STAND brought the Lives at Stake movement to the campus in honor of World AIDS Day in December. They also held an AIDS Awareness Week in April during which they held their annual consignment shop, a colloquium and showed a documentary film. STAND plans to cultivate their newly established relationships with local AIDS facilities through participation in projects sponsored by these organizations and regular volunteer service.

WOMEN OF GRACE

(Above) Jennifer Horberg , Genevieve Rivera and Jocelyn Cox sip some tea and enjoy in conversation at a Women of Grace meeting

Brand new to ENC and already a highly respected organization, Women of Grace is a group within the campus designed to build a woman's self-worth. This is done through fellowship, panels and other awareness mechanisms pertaining to issues women continue to face in today's society;including education, and service projects. WOG spent the fall semester writing their very own constitution and emerged in the spring as an SGA sponsored organization. In just one semester, WOG held a number of quality events including a well-attended exploitation panel and a faculty/staff/student tea party and also worked with the SGA during Breast Cancer Awareness Month. As the organization expands, WOG would like to begin reaching out to the community by impliementing educational programs in high schools and the like. Leader Genevieve Rivera (07) explains, "Each of these girls has their own reasons for being here. The diversity helps make Women of Grace what it is."

OPEN HAND OPEN HEART

"And if anyone gives even a cup of cold water ... because he is my diciple, I tell you the truth, he will not loose his reward." Open Hand Open Heart is a ministry that travels into the heart of Boston to offer physical, emotional and spiritual support to the homeless and needy. Each Saturday, once in the morning and once in the evening, a group of five or more willing students assembles in The Dugout to prepare sandwiches, juice and a large bin of clothing. They then ride the T to the Boston Commons to offer these items and the warmth of friendship to those in need. These students and several of the recipiants of this ministry know one another on a first name basis and look forward to the provisions and good company the group brings. "It gives them strength to get through the day, week, month or year," says leader Wesley Rankin (06). This passed year, with the help of Public Relations major Amanda Egolf (09), Open Hand Open Heart was able to capture some community attention. They had articles printed in both the Quincy Star and the Patriot Ledger and, as a result, the ministry received a generous monetary donation from a concerned reader. When asked about the future of this ministry, Wes expresses his expections for its growth and his confidence in its new leaders, Josh Burley (09) and Matt Woodley (09). He says, "Each year we have new people join and continue the work and I don't see that slowing down any time soon."

(Right) After handing Dave a sandwich, Wes Rankin (06) discusses world issues with him, whom the students regularly visit in the Commons.

CHORAL UNION

Choral Union serves the ENC community by performing works of the classical repertoire and educates music majors in ensemble performance through exposure to classical works. This year, like the past 75 years, Choral Union performed Handel's Messiah, which always draws alumni

CHAMBER SINGERS

back to campus and is a highlight of the Christmas season. In addition, they performed Mozart's Requiem, which proved to a very powerful, moving piece for both the listers and performers. Also, the group performed two outreach concerts in the winter and spring for disabled war veterans at the VA hospital in Bedford, Massachusetts. Dr. Delvin Case attests, "Bringing the joy of music to these heroes was a powerful experience not only for them, but also for the Choral Union. It showed the power of music to unite the young and the old, the sick and the healthy, the religous and the irreligous." Choral Union will continue the tradition of the Messiah, performing master works in the spring, and will continue presenting outreach concerts.

A CAPPELLA

A Cappella and Chamber Singers, according to President Katelyn Crouse (08), seeks to praise, serve and grow in God, in each other and musically. "We work as a team to enhance our musical abilities as well as feed each other spiritually and emotionally ... I don't know where I would be spiritually if this group hadn't impacted me and others around me so much," says Katelyn. The group completed fall, winter and spring tours as well as their major performance at Jordan Hall at the New England Conservatory of Music. Along with the spiritual emphasis, the substantial number of freshmen, each of which have displayed an enormous amount of potential, made this an exceptional year of growth for A Cappella and Chambers. For all of these reasons, Katelyn and the rest of the group look forward to another challenging and enjoyable year.

GOSPEL CHOIR

According to Dr. Delvin Case, Gospel Choir's mission is "to provide an education in choral singing in the gospel music tradition, to contribute to worship services by performing with passion and enthusiasm, to serve our community by presenting outreach/benefit concerts, and to provide a model for Christian community for members of the ENC campus." This past year, Gospel Choir recorded its first professional-quality recording entirely produced at ENC. They also performed in a number of ENC's chapel services, performed a number of concerts, including one at ENC's first annual Cultures of the World Festival on April 29th. The group looks to increase their number of outreach concerts and to soon perform at Disney World in Florida.

STRINGS ENSEMBLE

Insipired by Dr. Delvin Case, ENC's string ensemble is actually a rebirth of the extensive orchestra that once existed here. According to director Anne Webb, among such a large, diverse group of the people, chances are a certain percentage of them play an instrument. "Right now, we have a chamber group [consisting of a first violin, second violin, viola and cello]. But we hope to grow as others hear about it and want to join us," Webb says. The group came together in the beginning of spring semester and held their first performance with symphonic winds during their spring concert in the Mann Student Center. Members of the ensemble found that they advanced thier level of skill over the semester and found renewed enjoyment in playing. Performers are eligible for class credit from the music department.

SYMPHONIC WINDS

This group began at ENC very small with only about six or seven musicians. It grew immensely after it was opened up to the community. They now traditionally perform two concerts a year in the winter and spring and this is the fourth year they have performed the music at commencement. Winds director Stephen C. Bell, declares that the symphonic winds is predominantly a chance for learning and teaching between young and veteran musicians. The symphonic wind ensemble at ENC is made up of ENC students as well as middle and high school students and adult musicians from the community who may join free of charge. In this setting, veterans have the joy of continuing to play and younger musicians are challenged to improve and advance in thier musical abilities. Symphonic winds offers class credit for performers.

SOCIAL LIFE COMMITTEE

The social life committee is responsible for sponsoring and organizing the major SGA social life events on campus. Headed up this past year by Ryan Magnuson (06), the executive SGA social life director, the social life committee's events often include game shows, concerts and other creative forms of entertainment that the entire campus can participate in and enjoy. This year, the committee put on the second annual harvest party in October and engaged the campus in an all out campus-wide game of assassins. It proved to be another exciting year for the social life committee and it hopes to continue the trend of fun in the years to come.

The Individual Expression

Social Life

College life allows for a plethora of personalities to display their own talents and behaviors. The individual expressions that the student body encompasses reach a diverse range. Whether it is through style, behavior, culture, faith, or friendships, this community is able to express itself in many distinctive ways. This year the student life events catered to a wide range of individuals who expressed themselves in a variety of ways. The game shows were a hit among those who wanted to embarrass themselves for an amusing prize, while the intramural sports were a lot of fun among those who wanted to show off their athletic abilities. The concerts, open mic nights, and "The Spot" were a place for students or guests of ENC to express themselves though their musical abilities. The audience cheering them on. The individual expression describes what each and every student carries with them that impacts the ENC community.

Welcome Week

Welcome week brought the student body together and gave a warm welcoming to the new incoming freshmen. Several events, such as capture the flag, movie night, bowling, ice cream social, a concert with the Nazarene Bethel Church, and the front lawn free-for-all, gave everyone a chance to loosen up and meet new students, as well as re-unite with roommates and friends before it all went up hill. Welcome Week '05 was the starting point to our new school year with new admistration and new students.

The puzzles ranged in difficulty from easy to hard, such as the word "igloo," an example of an easy puzzle. Or "Milk was a bad choice," taken from the movie Jacket Man, was one of the hard puzzles. In both cases, the contestants were not able to guess the correct answers to either of the puzzles.

Lindsey Marchand, dressed as a coral snake and Davey Edmonds, Waldo of "Where's Waldo?" enjoy themselves as they wait to see if they will win the costume contest.

Erika Stuart and Rachel Manzo wrap Lauren Gagnon with toilet paper in hopes that they will win the contest and the prize.

ENC's harvest party, sponsored by the SGA and held on Halloween night, had a good turn out this year. The tradition originally started because the SGA recognized that some Christians struggled with the celebrations of Halloween because of its origins in witchcraft.

Sticking to tradition, this year's harvest party consisted of games, music, fellowship, and the movie The Sixth Sense topping off the night. Games included a variation of musical chairs, but instead of chairs, contestants had to walk in a circle and stand on paper leaves that were placed on the floor. Other games included a race to eat a marshmallow dangling from a string and the toilet paper-wrap race. The winner of each game received prizes such as t-shirts and DVDs. The big contest of the night was the costume contest. Prizes were given for best, most original, and funniest costumes.

"Thou dost show me the path of life; in thy presence there is a fullness of joy, in thy right hand are pleasures for evermore."
Psalms 16:11

Through the beauty of the sun shining through the clouds, or in the gloriously painted sky at dawn,
or in the evening as the sun goes down,
God tells us that He is here.
Through the gift of laughter,
the hug of a loved one,
through the eyes of a child,
God tells us that He is here.
God shares with us, the ability to form memories,
that will stay with us always and forever;
sometimes a smell, a taste, or something that we see...
something that warms our heart with love.
And at times in our lives
when sadness encompasses us....
through the loss of loved ones,
God, ever present,
takes our heart...
healing it at the time we need it most.
God asks only that we know
He is near, always.
Sometimes, in His infinite wisdom,
He places the right people in our lives at the right time...
I thank Him for putting you in our lives.

"And so, from the day we heard of it, we have not ceased to pray for you, asking that you may be filled with the knowledge of his will in all spiritual wisdom and understanding, to lead a life worth of the Lord, fully pleasing to him, bearing fruit in every good work and increasing in the knowledge of God. May you be strengthened with all power according to his glorious might, for all endurance and patience with joy, giving thanks to the Father who has qualified us to share in the inheritance of the saints in light." 2006 EASTERN NAZARENE GRADUATE

As a gift from God, you were brought into this world as a bouncing baby girl full of life and personality. Through your years of life walking hand in hand with God you have lived a wonderful life filled with experiences you will never forget. Your family loves and supports you and so you your friends and relatives. You continue to make us proud of you by developing into a mature young woman who respects herself and everyone in your environment. Amy and ENC was a perfect match alowing your academic goals to be achieved and maintaining your vibrant personality with a contagious love of life. We love you and know your future is bright, because you have discovered how rewarding unconditional love is in one's life. You now have many options in front of you and with God's help and guidance you will continue to make conderful choices and have a very successfil life.

With all our love!

Mom, Dady, and Bobby

Know in all these things we are more then conquerors though him who loved us. For I am convincd taht neither death not life, neither angels nor demons, neither the present nor the future , norr any powers, neither height nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God that is in Jesus Christ
Romans 8:37-38

Love must be sincere. Hathe what is evil; cling to what is good. Be devoted to one another in brotherly love. Honor one another above yourselves. Never be lacking in zeal, but keep you rspirtual fevor, serving the Lord. Be joyful in hope, patient in affliction, faithful in prayer.
